

1ST INTERNATIONAL COURSE ON ARCHAEOLOGY AND CULTURES OF THE ANCIENT MEDITERRANEAN

The Universitat Jaume I of Castellón (Spain), the Università di Macerata (Italy), the Université de Lorraine (France) and the Archaeological Museum of Burriana (Spain) are organising the 1st edition of the International Course on Archaeology and Cultures of the Ancient Mediterranean, which this year will take place between Monday 3 and Sunday 9 October 2022 in Burriana.

The archaeological interventions of the Course are part of the research project of the maritime villa of Sant Gregori (Burriana coast, Spain) (I century B.C.-IV c. A.D.), and the excavation works planned will take place in the residential sector. Previous interventions carried out at this site have made it possible to recover a complex stratigraphic sequence that illustrates the evolution of the Roman site, as well as other evidence on the coast that demonstrates the existence of a Bronze Age cremation necropolis, a early Imperial Roman settlement, as well as other sites from the Roman Republican and Medieval periods.

The course will be divided into practical sessions, which will take place in the mornings, and theoretical sessions, which will be held in the afternoons. The former ones will include archaeological excavation work, as well as documentation and recording of excavation data. At the same time, there will also be practice in the classification of materials. The afternoons and the last day of the Course will be devoted to theoretical sessions related to lectures, as well as visits to the monumental remains of the Roman cities of Tarraco and Saguntum.

The course will provide students with knowledge of the theoretical principles, methodologies and techniques of archaeological studies. Students will also work on the acquisition of skills aimed at the protection and dissemination of archaeological heritage in a trans-Mediterranean dimension.
